BE THE MATCHSM

Meet Roy Chelsen

Roy Chelsen is a New York City firefighter who responded to the call on 9/11, and thankfully made it out alive, just before the second tower collapsed. He is credited with saving the lives of 6 other firefighters in his house. Unfortunately, he is now ill.

Roy was diagnosed in December 2005 with Multiple Myeloma. He has been through numerous blood transfusions, chemo treatments and even an autologous (self) stem cell transplant, which put him in remission, but only for a year. He is now in need of a stem cell donor.

Roy and his family are asking you to join the Registry of committed potential donors that stand ready to give patients like Roy a second chance at life.

Registration is easy! A consent form is filled out and a swab of the cheeks is taken. Your tissue type is added to the Registry until your 61st birthday. Every day 6,000 patients search the Registry in hopes of finding a match.

You could be the one. You could be the match.
